GREAT DINING

At Man and His World, the gastronomic arts of fine cuisine are a part of our culture. Many of the participating countries have restaurants offering their culinary specialties.

The pavilions of Italy, Czechoslovakia, France, Austria, Bulgaria and Quebec all offer such restaurant service this year at Man and His World. They're a wonderful opportunity to perfect your acquaintance with their distinctive cuisines.

Gourmets will also enjoy Man and His World's German restaurant, the Lili Marlene, two very popular cafeterias, the brewers' pavilion, the Raphael and the many snack bars. Prices are as varied as the dishes, and the visitor will have no trouble finding the restaurant that best suits his taste.

When hunger pangs strike at La Ronde, there is a wide choice of restaurants: le Gobelet, which specializes in Québécois dishes; the Aqua-Délices with its wide selection of seafoods and scintillating sauces; the Biergarten for sauerkraut and other Bavarian delights;

the chicken barbecue; the Italian restaurant (formerly Le Koliba); Tad's Steak House; and the score of snack bars for smaller appetites or for those who want to eat and run.

No one on the islands of Man and His World ever need go hungry. For great dining or quick snacking there, good food is a hallmark.
