

FIJI PAVILION

Agreement to participate: 28 October 1985

Commissioner-General: Sir Charles Stinson
Deputy Commissioner-General: Mrs Karen Hoskison

National Day: Tuesday, 6 September

Pavilion details: Located in the Pacific Village

Architects/Designers: Rathe Campbell

Theme: Depict the lifestyle of the people of Fiji

Exhibits: The exhibit features two traditional buildings, a "Bure Kalou" (temple) and the "Volau" (living quarters) which will be used as Fiji's workshop. The "Bure Kalou" features Fiji's lifestyles in terms of culture and tourism. "The Volau" concentrates on modern achievements in promoting the growth in manufacturing and investment opportunities in Fiji.

Entertainment: Island entertainment, canoe building, making Magi Magi (Sennit) and dress material, Tapa (the beating and stencilling of bark).

Restaurant: No

Shop: The Bure Volau is also being used as the merchandising outlet for the Fiji Pavilion. Items such as resort wear; shell and black coral jewellery; woven handicrafts like the beautiful baskets, mats and fans synonymous with the Fijian Islands; wooden handicrafts; coconut based products like confectionery and soap and also sterling silver charms can be purchased.

FINDERS

Finders provides a service for the reporting and collection of articles lost or found on the site, and a system to assist visitors in locating their property.

Each of the four Information Centres receives lost articles during the daytime, and unclaimed articles are transferred to a central store overnight.

Finders maintains identifying information on lost articles to enable their speedy retrieval from the central store.

FIREWORKS

World Expo 88's nightly fireworks spectacular will break new ground in the art of the pyrotechnics. Fireworks will combine with laser lights and a musical soundtrack in a symphony of sight and sound.

The 15 minute extravaganza will light up the sky over the Brisbane River nightly at 10 pm, bringing down the curtain on each day's festivities. Rare daytime fireworks will also be a special feature of Expo.

The nightly shows will be programmed using a specialised computer system which will enable the fireworks to be set off by impulses in the accompanying music.

Three different fireworks and laser shows will be rotated during Expo. Some shows will tell a story, while others will centre on a theme.

FM 104 EXHIBIT

Record your favourite songs with the help of professional recording engineers at the FM 104 exhibit.

Visitors can sing along to backing music to suit all ages and music tastes.

Hear your voice played back and then take home the recording.

Visitors gain an insight into how a recording studio works as FM 104 Disc Jockeys broadcast live from the Expo site.

FM 104's Rock Shop sells a range of merchandise.

FOOD AND BEVERAGE

WORLD EXPO 88 FOOD POLICY: Bag lunches will be allowed on the site. No alcohol or glass of any kind will be allowed to enter the site at any time.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY OF AUSTRALIA PAVILION

Agreement to participate: 24 October, 1985

Commissioner: Mr Ken Turner
Deputy-Commissioner: Mr Ross Dopson

Corporate Day: Friday 15 July

Pavilion details: K 108 B (550 square metres)

Architect/designer: Photomation Pty Ltd

Theme: "Technology - the Key to Your Future"

Exhibit: Henry Ford, the founder of the great American motor car manufacturing industry, will take visitors on a journey through time. Henry, recreated by an actor and modern video techniques, explains the intricacies and historical detail of automative design.

Walking through the keyhole, visitors are treated to a display of Ford cars from the 1920's, 1940's and 1960's, combined with historical film footage, animated stills and graphics.

As visitors leave the theatre through a tunnel of lights, images of Ford designers at work and an artist's impression of the future of the automobile will usher them out.

FRANCE PAVILION

Agreement to participate: 28 March, 1986

Commissioner-General: Mr Marcel Galopin

National Day: Saturday, 23 July

Pavilion details: K109 (1,050 square metres)

Architect/Designers: Jean-Pierre Clausse
Jean-Louis Delaunay

Theme: Diversity and harmony in leisure activities

Exhibits: Seven themes are developed within the France Pavilion. The first is touring and holidaying the French way. The second, entitled, Sea and Mountain, shows equipment used and activities which can be enjoyed during a day of leisure. Leisure in the age of telecommunications is explored within the third theme which examines the worldwide broadcasting of leisure events. The fourth theme features sports champions and today's technology.

Leisure time for children comes with theme five showing the latest French toys and model making activities (see entertainment below). The sixth theme relates to tradition and creativity in art and art for mental pleasure. New architectural complexes illustrating modern concepts for the development of culture, education and recreation are on show. A focal point is a 15 X 6 metre reproduction of the "Eiffel Tower" painting by Robert Delaunay. Twelve original paintings by artist, Anna Hacoun-Lutsky, pay tribute to French master painters in the pavilion courtyard. The last theme identifies a country of "good living" through the food and beverage sections.

Entertainment: In the Queensland Performing Arts Complex from May to July, there will be the largest exhibition of sculptures and paintings from the Louvre Museum ever presented in Australia. More than 50 pieces will span 300 years of French art. The Comedie Francaise will perform in the Queensland Performing Arts Complex from 21 to 25 September. A special production of the "Bourgeois Gentleman" by Moliere will represent the best of the classical age of French theatre. A Festival featuring the music of Messiaen, a famous French composer, will be held in the Queensland Performing Arts Complex. Organ recitals will be held from 14 to 18 May and 14 June. Folklore groups including musicians and dancers from French provinces and Tahiti will perform during August and October.

In the pavilion courtyard, creative workshops run for the public every second week, from July to October. These include seven "fun art" sessions with themes such as art to wear and painting by music. Prizes are offered to participants. A special play area is provided for children from six to 12 years to take part in model making activities including a 5 metre high Eiffel Tower from 1pm to 5pm.

Restaurant: A large variety of French delicacies are on sale at the pavilion's take away counter. Chamapagne is served in a setting which is a faithful reproduction of a 15th century interior as it could be seen in the Champagne province.

Shop: Souvenirs from the pavilion, from $3 to $15, are on sale in the French boutique.

Other features: The France Pavilion is adjacent to the pavilion of The Federal Republic of Germany.

FUJITSU AUSTRALIA PAVILION

Agreement to participate: 2 December, 1986

Commissioner: Mr Leigh Gorringe

Corporate Day: Saturday 30 July

Pavilion details: K 112 F (533 square metres)

Architect/Designers: Rathe Campbell

Theme: "See your Past and Future in a New Dimension"
"Fujitsu - Japan's leading computer and communications company"

Exhibit: The main feature of the Fujitsu pavilion is a large 3-D theatre. Visitors don special 3-D vision red and blue glasses, sit in reclining seats and watch a computer graphics movie entitled "The Universe" which outlines the five billion year history of our solar system. Running time: 10 minutes. Images of our universe, such as satellites, ice molecules, animals and man appear to leap out of the screen.

Also in the pavilion is a high technology gallery where larger-than-life animated models trace the history of computer and communications technology from early calculators to satellites, submarine cables, super computers and even dancing robots.

Entertainment: Entertainment for queues may take the form of computerised world weather map details, LSI chips, HEMPT transistors and a range of other leading edge technology from Fujitsu.

Restaurant: No

Shop: No

Other features: Visitors can souvenir the 3-D glasses and 3-D pictures.
